Using the feelings cards

Hold up one card and ask: where do you feel it? Your child can point to a place on their body, or say a word, or just show you. There are no right answers.

1. Pick the card that matches a moment in the story, then say what happened next.
2. Put two or three cards in a row and ask which one comes first, which one comes last.
3. Hold the card up when you feel it yourself. Grown-ups feel these too.
4. Cut along the dashed lines. Print on card stock if you can.

These cards use words and colour only. They show no faces, so a child can decide for themselves what a feeling looks like.
